

Revista ANPPREV de Seguridade Social — RASS presents this special issue.

This publication brings together texts and reflective articles that record initiatives developed by the Federal Attorney General's Office — PGF between 2023 and 2026, with a focus on governance, strategy, digital innovation, people management, technology, data, and the improvement of public legal practice.

Despite the quality of the contributions, these texts did not undergo double-blind peer review and are therefore classified as reflective essays.

In this special issue, the idea of good public administration is associated with the institutional capacity to plan more effectively, make evidence-based decisions, organize workflows, and respond more efficiently to the demands of society (Silva & Albuquerque Lima, 2023).

The texts portray a PGF in transformation, seeking to move beyond merely reactive models of action and to build more strategic, uniform, and results-oriented solutions.

By publishing this special issue, RASS reaffirms its commitment to the dissemination of technical knowledge, institutional transparency, and qualified debate on Public Administration.

More than presenting results, this issue contributes to preserving institutional memory and inspiring new practices aimed at a more efficient, responsible Public Administration, committed to the rights of society.

Brasília, May 13-2026.

Fábio Lucas de Albuquerque Lima
Editor-Chefe

REFERENCES

Silva, M. de P. R. ., & Albuquerque Lima, F. L. (2023). O PRINCÍPIO DA EFICIÊNCIA NA GESTÃO PÚBLICA BRASILEIRA: UMA ANÁLISE DE SUAS CONTRIBUIÇÕES NOS SERVIÇOS DESTINADOS À SOCIEDADE. Revista Ibero-Americana De Humanidades, Ciências E Educação, 9(4), 138–151.
<https://doi.org/10.51891/rease.v9i4.9106>